

Atlantic County Sober Living and Oxford House Directory

Sober living houses can vary in services, staffing, cost and quality. This directory provides information to potential clients and/or their families about every sober living house and Oxford House in Atlantic County. The directory does not provide any recommendations, approvals and/or endorsements of any of the homes, it simply provides information as reported by a house manager/director.

This directory was developed as a result of a recommendation of the Atlantic County Overdose Fatality Review team in 2021.

Last Updated August 202

Sober Living Houses refer to group residences for people recovering from addiction. Residents agree to remain sober while living in the house. Private owners usually own these homes, but charities and businesses may also own sober living houses. In New Jersey, these facilities are overseen by the Department of Community Affairs, Bureau of Rooming and Boarding House Standards. All homes are evaluated for the physical safety and social wellbeing of the residents. Inspections are conducted and made public at <https://www.nj.gov/dca/home/inspections.html>

Oxford Houses are self-run, self-supported group housing for recovering from a substance abuse disorder. Oxford Houses began in 1975. Now there are more than 3,000 Oxford Houses for both men and women in 45 states. Oxford House provides each new group an Oxford House Charter and provides the new group with the know-how and support to establish and operate a successful house. Oxford Houses are federally exempt from the Department of Community Affairs licenses as a result of PL 100-690. Oxford houses are not considered a rooming or boarding house as they are rented by residents of each house. Each houses' finances (rent, electricity, etc.) are managed by the house residents, not a single owner.
